

Thresher & Glenny - Factsheet

- Founded: 1696 in the Strand, London
- Business: tailors, outfitters and shirt makers
- Customers: the company has held continuous Royal Warrants since the rein of George III in 1783; other customers have included Horatio Lord Nelson, Doctor Livingstone, HM Stanley, Garibaldi, Emperors of Japan, Viceroys of India, Pashas of Egypt, Buffalo Bill, Baden Powell, Fred Perry
- Products: bespoke, made to measure and made to order suits, morning coats, dinner jackets, sports coats and blazers, shirts (ready for service, made to order, made to measure and full bespoke), ties, handkerchiefs, socks, boxers, cufflinks and other accessories
- Philosophy: Thresher & Glenny has always believed in outstanding quality at realistic prices – in the words of Mr Thresher ‘How reasonably can our products be sold? But always with a keen understanding of what constitutes a false economy.’ In today’s world this means embracing all the best bits from history, while at the same time taking the full benefit from the latest concepts and most modern approaches
- Owner: the last family member was Henry John Glenny who died in 1938. Mark Finch bought the company in 2004 and since 2011 he has been working to restore the company to its former glories with a number of members of the team behind the recent reinvigoration of Fortnum and Mason
- Location: 1 Middle Temple Lane, London, EC4Y 9AA;
